Jim has been contacted by Ana from the Te Whare Putaiao o Manawatu Institute. Ana is in charge of Project Huia and is passionate about confirming Jim's sighting and maybe even gathering DNA from the dead bird's body. What unfolds is a fascinating tale of adventure, jinxes, danger and family unity. Jim and his sister Mavis aren't the only ones looking for the last huia. The Carsons, the town's notorious bullies, are determined to kill the huia and sell it to be stuffed. Jim and Mavis are desperate to save the huia, which they have named Olivia. Now, forty years later, all Ana, Logan and Jim need to do is find it again. But how accurate is Jim's memory of events after all this time?

Tips to enjoy reading.

Are you someone who used to read but doesn't anymore, or wants to get into reading? Whatever your objective, here are some top tips to help you become a better reader.

- 1) It may seem obvious, but the goal should be to find pleasure in reading. Identify what type of book is suitable for your individual tastes, and seek them out! Your interests will evolve over time and so will the books that give you joy!
- 2) Find an appropriate environment for reading. Your surroundings can have a big impact on whether you can enjoy reading. Try putting technology aside – it's easy to be distracted by your phone. Make sure you are comfortable. The couch, your bedroom, even outside can offer you physical comfort while you read.
- 3) Think about the time you have available for reading. Try setting aside a sustainable period of time each day, even if it's only twenty minutes, to dedicate to reading.
- 4) Take advantage of the resources available. Books are everywhere if you know where to look! Waitakere College Library has a considerable collection and the librarians and your teachers are always eager to promote reading and to offer you any assistance you need! Auckland libraries, too, are free and have pretty much any book you could wish for.
- 5) Connect with others. Reading doesn't have to be solitary! Talking with others about books is a great way to share alternative perspectives, listen to people's reactions, and generally enhance the pleasure of reading.
- 6) Above all, HAVE FUN!!

If in doubt on any matter, parents are encouraged to contact the Student Centre, especially before purchasing items which may not be accepted. N.B. This particularly applies to shoes and piercings.

The College reserves the right to decide the acceptability of items of uniform, and standards of clean dress and grooming. Incorrectly dressed students may have non-compliant items impounded, and may have items loaned by the Student Centre, with an expectation that the uniform will be corrected before attending school the next day.

All items must be named and are students' own responsibility; the College accepts no liability for lost items. Uniform should be in good condition, not stained or ripped, and with all buttons in place.
